

Tamil Nadu Mediation and Conciliation Centre, High Court Of Madras

Empirical research on the functioning of Tamil Nadu HighCourt

Dr Ashutosh Mishra

Assistant Professor, Law Centre-II, Faculty of Law, University of Delhi

---

Abstract

In the present justice delivery system utmost object of judiciary is to impart justice in a very expeditious manner. Now the question arises how it is feasible to impart justice .Mediation as a form of alternative dispute resolution can impart justice in a expedite manner. Mediation which provides opportunity to resolve the dispute amicably and in a very cost effective manner. In the present scenario under the supervision of Supreme Court of India, mediation has got new shape. Now Supreme Court is putting every efforts to make this concept a successful . Now in India every High Court has established its own mediation Centre and that mediation centre is playing the role of beacon light and guiding lamp for the district mediation centres. Mediation Centre at the High Court level is working under the committee comprises of High Court judges and first puisine judge is being the chairman and patron of the committee is chief justice of the respective Highcourt. Now the High Court is working at a very grossroot level in organizing awareness programme, mediation training programme, judges training programme.

Tamil Nadu High Court has played a very pivotal role in justice delivery system through incorporating international practices and implementing new techniques . In Tamil Nadu High Court mediation Centre is playing important role in resolving the dispute .In the present research paper I am going to discuss how the mediation Centre is functioning, what kind of cases comes for the mediation ,how is the efficiency of the mediation.

Introduction

The Tamil Nadu Mediation and Conciliation Centre, India's first Court-Annexed Mediation Centre, was inaugurated on 9th April, 2005, thus marking another significant milestone in the hoary history of the Madras High Court established on 15th August, 1862. The Centre is established as per the mandate under Section 89 of the Civil